

Aosta Valley: An eco-friendly destination

Aosta Valley is abundant in natural heritage and rare beauty, encompassing protected areas, stunning gardens, and majestic mountains. While catering to tourists, the region is committed to preserving its biodiversity and landscapes.

It is surrounded by Europe's highest and most iconic peaks: Mont Blanc, the Matterhorn, the Gran Paradiso, and Monte Rosa. Despite being Italy's smallest region, the Aosta Valley is rich in stunning natural sites.

The views of the Alps in Italy are uniquely captivating, and they are even more striking in Aosta Valley. This part of Italy is a jewel of extraordinary nature, offering an impressive range of outdoor activities, cultural heritage, and excellent restaurants.

Aosta Valley is an endearing destination for visitors seeking the great outdoors, remarkable heritage, and natural beauty. Discreet, generous, wild, and gourmet, Aosta Valley promises a diverse experience with the charm of historic villages and the thrill of high peaks. Fall under the spell of this enchanting corner of Italy.

For years, the region has been dedicated to environmental preservation and sustainability. It cherishes its quality of life and that of its land. Beyond its protected natural sites, many residents are committed to sustainable tourism, ensuring visitors can experience the best while maintaining the region's exceptional character. With resilient wildflowers, mountain vineyards, and ancient castles, venturing into the valley, visitors can fully embrace the incredible opportunities awaiting during summer in Aosta Valley. Nearly one-third of Aosta Valley's territory is safeguarded within national and regional parks, botanical gardens, and ten nature reserves.

The Green Experience - A new initiative in Aosta Valley, redefining the mountain getaway.

Embark on a complete tour of Mont-Blanc—7 days and 6 nights with 3 dinners in each country—aboard a FIAT 500c electric Cabriolet. Covering approximately 400 km across three countries via Cogne (Aosta Valley, Italy), Lourtier (Valais, Switzerland), and Hauteluce (Savoie, France), with two nights spent in each country. This road trip offers opportunities to explore Aosta Valley, the Grand Paradiso National Park, Valnontey, and the Lillaz Waterfalls in Italy, followed by Verbier, Champex, and Martigny in Switzerland, and concluding with Megève and Beaufortain in France.

Experience the region's most beautiful—and ecofriendly—hotels around Mont-Blanc.

Departures are available from Chamonix or Aosta every Sunday from early June to late October.
